RELIVE THE CLASSIC DAYS OF SHIPPING

Too many modern cruise ships spend just about every day in port and only go to sea for a few hours in between ports at night. Well that's no good to us because as much as we enjoy calling at exciting ports, we also love our days at sea, otherwise we might just as well book into a hotel! It's for this reason that we have chosen this voyage and itinerary aboard mv Discovery.

Celebrate the shipping companies of yesteryear on our 8th Maritime Memories Voyage from South America to England via the Caribbean

Original paintings by Robert G. Lloyd

Below: mv Discovery arrives in the Azores on a previous Maritime Memories voyage

OCEAN TRAVEL, JUST AS IT USED TO BE...

So many of you have asked us to do another Maritime Memories Voyage, so we've done it, and what an exciting one it is. So come and join us as once again we turn back the clock and step back in time to the golden age of shipping and sail from Manaus in the Amazon back to the UK via some of the most interesting and beautiful places in the world. Or, if you're not able to sail all the way with us then join us in Barbados for the shorter, yet equally adventurous and exciting, Maritime Memories voyage back to the UK.

School). And for that extra Maritime Memories touch, during the voyage there will be several special evenings when we will, with the use of rare old menus from the past, recreate the same gourmet food that was once served to the rich and famous aboard the great ocean liners of yesteryear.

In this computerised age where everything is seemingly manufactured, no other shipping company will go to the same great lengths to provide such a specialist service. Yes, this is a very special voyage and every time we set sail or enter port, our Captain gives the order to hoist the most magnificent display of old company house flags and what a wonderful sight they make as they once again fly with pride.

We broadcast Snowbow's complete series of "The Great Liners" to your cabin through the onboard TV service as well as showing more rare maritime film during our special get-togethers. There are also regular trips to the bridge where the Captain is so pleased to welcome Maritime Memory passengers – you can even have a go on the helm if the urge a ship can provide but most import of all for Maritime Memories is the fact that we will have a ship full of like-minded people like you.

Every Maritime Memories passenger has their own very wonderful stories to tell of their own special memories of the golden age of shipping and believe me, to share your company really does make these voyages so very, very special. Oh, and by the way, we give you a special Maritime Memories Badge as well... just thought I'd throw that in!

You know, as an indicator of just how good these Maritime Memory Voyages are, many of our passengers have now been with us on every voyage we've done, which says an awful lot. And if you're at all concerned whether your wife or partner will enjoy this voyage then worry not, for they have the best time of all and they're the first on the phone to book again.

If you want to know more about Maritime Memories and this unique voyage then do call us on 01273 585 391. But most important of all, come and join us and let's all enjoy this opportunity whilst we still can, for it really is the holiday of a lifetime. And finally, as you will see from this brochure, we also have a very special low-fare deal for all our Maritime Memory passengers, which on top of everything else makes this the best value for money holiday of its kind. Now you can't get much better than that, can you!

You have asked us to try to recreate the era of adventure and excitement we once knew when going away to sea, so we have an itinerary that takes us to some of the most exciting and exotic islands in the world. But you also want days at sea – something pretty rare in modern cruising – and I'm pleased to say that we have plenty of those as well. Days when we can once again enjoy ourselves as we sail through the rich blue oceans aboard a real ship with wide-open wooden decks and gleaming brass. Yes, that's how it used to be in the good old days; when you could just sit out on deck at night enjoying wonderful company and a drink or two beneath tropical starry skies, listening to the gentle sounds of the passing sea and reliving those wonderful memories of days gone by.

Most of you know our ship; the 20,000 gross tons Discovery. Yes, she's a real ship and with only 650 passengers aboard – not like those huge floating blocks of flats they call ships today – there's so much room and no endless queues of thousands of passengers to fight your way through.

The food aboard is second to none. (A bit better than the stuff they used to dish-up at my old Sea Training suddenly takes you – plus there's lots of talks and parties hosted by a crew of maritime historians and specialists. If all this isn't enough for you then you can always enjoy the ship's normal high-class entertainment, which includes top cabaret every night, cinema, classical concerts, lectures, dancing, etc. Yes, on this voyage we will have all the fun and entertainment

This mesmerising three-part cruise sees you sailing gently from the former boom town of Manaus to some of the Amazon's remotest reaches and some of its liveliest towns, being little known outside the continent of South America. Skipping from island to island in the West Indies, we've a festival of colour in store, with warm sands, exotic cocktails and friendly smiles waiting to greet you. Then, more swashbuckling secrets come to light as the Azores beckon and lead us to the Old World.

CALLING AT:

Manaus

Far up the Amazon amid the rainforests seems an unlikely place to find an ornate opera house where Caruso and other leading lights once serenaded rich rubber barons. Before boarding Discovery, be sure to seek out the giant Victoria Regia water lilies that span seven feet across!

Parintins

Rio has its carnival, Parintins – an island city that lies in the midst of the Amazon – has its Boi Bumbá! Celebrated in June, this festival is something the locals work towards around the year until the floats, dancers and actors come together to parade around the appropriately named Bumbódromo, a stadium built in the shape of a bull.

Alter do Chão

You'll be amazed by the clear waters that lap the bay at Alter do Chão, a favourite refuge for the townsfolk of nearby Santarém. An easy walk uphill leads to the altar-shaped hill from which the village gets its name. Take in the dramatic views of the Tapajós River where it meets the Amazon.

The Amazon River

Narrowly conceding the title of the world's longer river to the Nile, the Amazon is the undisputed champion when measured in terms of its flow. During the rainy season, some 7 million cubic feet of water spill out every second into the Atlantic. Our voyage in the company of pink river dolphins leads past endless emerald forests, home to sloths, toucans, turtles and alligators.

Devil's Island

Isolated off the coast of French Guiana lies infamous Devil's Island, one of several islands making up the Îles du Salut. Once a one-way destination for political prisoners, each island served variously as an administrative HQ, a solitary confinement block and, on Devil's Island, a penal colony where the bulk of the prison cells still remain. A visit to the atmospheric ruins is as sobering as it is fascinating.

Trinidad

Lively Trinidad offers up a variety of surprises. Away from the bustle of Port-of-Spain, the forests of the Northern Mountain range conceal breathtaking Caribbean views, while inland, the Caroni swamp hosts the scarlet ibis and other exotic blooms.

Grenada

Head out to the Dougaldston Spice Estate to see a traditional plantation, or take a trip to Gouyave or Grenville and get to the heart of the 'Spice Isle' as it is known. These are the largest nutmeg processing plants on the island, providing about a third of the world's supply.

St. Vincent

Shaded Georgian arcades and cobbles abound around Kingstown, tiny St. Vincent's capital. Linger in the Botanical Gardens or seek out locations used in the recent Pirates of the Caribbean films.

Barbados

Slopes and valleys dressed in sugar cane and orchids, roadsides dotted with ramshackle rum shops – so much about Barbados captures the essence of a typical Caribbean island. With reminders of colonial occupation, Bridgetown even boasts its own Trafalgar Square!

St. Lucia

See the magnificent twin Pitons peaks that rise steeply out of the Caribbean. Browse in one of the markets or sip a cocktail on lively Derek Walcott Square. Head for the yacht harbour at Marigot Bay, or visit one of the many plantation houses that echo bygone colonial days.

Antigua

With names like Falmouth and English Harbour, it's no surprise British visitors feel at home here.

A yachtsman's mecca, today's sailors follow in a proud tradition established by the Royal Navy and Admiral Lord Nelson. There's also a chance to visit the oldest working dockyard in the world.

Horta

Discovery makes the first of several mid-Atlantic call in the Azores, visiting the Blue Island of Faial, so called because of the millions of hydrangeas that send a blue haze glowing over the landscape. Red windmills, green pastures, pink lilies and fragrant shades of lavender add to the kaleidoscope of colours. Relax by the marina or head up to Cabeca Gordo, the island's volcanic crater-lake, or up to Monte de Guia for a breathtaking panorama.

Angra do Heroísmo

Our last port of call in the Azores brings us to the 'Lilac Island' of Terceira. A World Heritage Site, the city of Angra (which means 'anchorage') dates back to the 15th century, a maze of stately townhouses, quaint cobbled byways and a fort with crenellated walls that runs for miles. Best views are from neighbouring Monte Brasil.

Ponta Delgada

From the waterfront, streets of whitewashed houses dating back two to three-hundred years invite exploration. Lavish palaces and ornate churches echo the city's importance as a trading post for those heading to and from the New World. Visit the tropical gardens of Terra Nostra Park at Furnas, or head for the hills and the island's most breathtaking vista, Sete Cidades.

MV DISCOVERY

With her classic lines and broad teak decks, Discovery is one of the very last ocean-going liners. Built in 1972, she was formerly the Island Princess before undergoing a major refit and refurbishment and being renamed Discovery. She looks and feels like a real ship should, with 8 classic ocean liner decks and berths for only a little over 600 passengers, which sounds just about right. Because she has been solidly constructed and has a deeper-than-average draft she's a great sea-ship, her speed and stability enabling her to sail anywhere in the world and, unlike those huge cruise ships of today, she has wide-open decks that actually allow us to see the sea and stars at night. In short, she's the sort of ship all us old salts and ship lovers will enjoy sailing on. And we'll be well looked after too, with Discovery's renowned cuisine and Filipino service staff.
